

Summer Associates

Almost all of the Law Library's resources and services are still available to law students over the summer, including:

Law Librarians

Students can call, email, or IM a law librarian to get help with anything!

LexisNexis/Westlaw

Although use of LexisNexis and Westlaw is restricted, law students may still be able to use them for limited purposes. Students should visit http://www.lexisnexis.com/lawschool/ and http://lawschool.westlaw.com or contact the LexisNexis and Westlaw representatives for more information. See Access to Legal Databases for additional information.

Casemaker and VersusLaw

Law students can still access these databases, which contain federal and state primary law. Students who do not yet have an account should contact a law librarian to find out how to get one.

Other Electronic Resources

Law students have full access to all of UNC's subscription databases with their Onyen/password, including HeinOnline, ProQuest Congressional, BNA Databases, and more.

Books & Other Materials

Law students can check out books and other materials over the summer from any UNC Library using their OneCard and request books from other libraries using Interlibrary Loan.

Last Updated: 8/7/2013